Button Batteries Be aware!

Button batteries power everyday objects like car key fobs, remotes and children's toys. But did you know that if they are swallowed they can badly injure, or even kill a child?

Batteries react with saliva and if a child swallows a button battery it can burn holes and cause internal bleeding, or even death. Tragically, a young child in Staffordshire has recently died from ingesting a button battery.

How to keep children safe

- Store spare batteries securely, out of reach
- Know which toys /gadgets use button batteries, check your home
- Get rid of 'dead' button batteries immediately – they still have enough power to harm children
- Teach older children the dangers – why they shouldn't play with them or give them to younger children
- Place strong tape over the battery compartment on remote controls

Be aware!

Symptoms may not be obvious. Your child might be coughing, gagging or drooling, or pointing to their throat or tummy. Unclear or fluctuating symptoms mean it's important to be vigilant. Trust your instincts and act fast even if there are no symptoms.

If you think your child has swallowed a battery, take them straight to the nearest A&E department or call 999 for an ambulance

Child Safety Week June 2021

Children and Pets Unattended in Cars.

SAFEGUARDING NOTICE

We received updates from NSPCC and RSPCA this week about the dangers of leaving animals and children in cars unattended – especially in the summer months.

Overheating can happen very quickly and can have disastrous consequences in a very short space of time.

Pre-school and young children should NEVER be left unattended – even for the shortest of times.

If parking in the local area, even if very close to school entrances, please ensure that children are not left unattended as this is deemed a serious safeguarding risk.

Year 3/4 Viking Week

Year 3/4 have had a fantastic week with our Viking themed learning experience: The good, the bad and the ugly! They have learnt all about life on a Viking Longship and how they were built, Viking Runes, shield design and Norse Gods. But the big highlight of the week was Thursday's Viking day, where the children were invited to dress up as a Viking warrior or maiden and wow - we had some awesome creations.
